Both players have been internationally acclaimed for their unique musical vision and innovative approaches to their instruments. This album invokes new landscapes of imagination and deep introspection using a palette of newly invented acoustic guitar-family instruments and individualistic electric guitar sounds to evoke a stunning beauty. InnerViews magazine said of their previous album, "One of the finest albums of this or any other year." WFMU radio in New York City named their four previous albums as one of their Favorite Albums of 2011, 2012, 2013, 2014, 2015, and 2017. AcousticMusic.com named their 2014 release "In Stories" as one of the top 10 albums of 2014. Rubicon I, their 2021 album release, was in first-round voting for the 2022 Grammy® Awards in the category of Best Jazz Instrumental album.

I dreamed of invisible journeys is their tenth album together.

Mark Wingfield is an internationally recognized electric guitar virtuoso and innovator with a uniquely individual voice.

Kevin Kastning invented the 36-string Double Contraguitar and the 15-string Extended classical guitar, both of which he plays on this new recording.
